TO LOOK INTO GAS FINANCES

Agents From Public Service Commission Will Come Monday to Get More Data on Petition.

FOR INCREASE IN RATES

Central Fuel Company Today Receives Bailing Machine to Keep Wells Free of Water

Agents of the Indiana public service commission will come here next Monday to examine the financial condition of the Peoples Natural Gas company and the Central Fuel Gas company as a part of the details in arranging for the hearing on the petition of the two companies for increase in rates.

The commission has already had men here to appraise the property. The men who come next week will learn how many customers the two companies have and how many feet of gas they are selling. Then the commission will have the data on which to base their decision on the petition for an increase.

Officials of the companies hold that an answer of the city of Rushville to the petition, which was filed recently, raises no questions which have not already been settled. They say the answer questions the jurisdiction of the commission, it holding the power of regulating the price charged by any given public utility company remains with the city council where the utility is located.

These officials recall that the commission ruled on the question of jurisdiction when it raised the water rates in Greencastle on the petition of the water company. It is pointed out by them that the commission held in its opinion in this case that the powers of city councils are set out by the legislature; that in this case the legislature has taken from the city councils the power of regulating the price charge by public utilities and vested it in the public service commission.

The Central Fuel company this morning received a gas well bailing machine with which they expect this winter to keep their mains free of water. Officials of the company stated this morning that this additional equipment will make the field expenses of the company more than twice as great as ever before. Whereas they have had only one well cleaner in the field heretofore, it will now be necessary to have two men and a team of horses with a well bailing machine.

These things are cited by the gas company to support their contention that it costs more to operate natural gas companies now than it did in the past and at the same time the supply of gas is less. In addition to the extra men and a team of horses, the company has the investment in the machine and it will mean additional expense to operate the machine.

The Central Fuel company has had two sets of contractors cleaning the company's well for two months. With the new machine the company expects to keep the wells clean all of the time. They will bail water from any well that needs it as often as once each day if necessary. In the past they have allowed the water to accumulate in their wells until it was necessary to pull the pipes and clean them thoroughly.

So far as officials of the Central Fuel company know, the machine received today is the only one of its kind in use in Indiana. The Connersville gas company has something similar to it, and through its use last winter the company was able to give

GOVERNOR HODGES LOSES

Democratic Candidate For Re-Election in Kansas Known Here.

Governor George H. Hodges of Kansas, who married a Rush county girl and who is well known here, having visited in Rushville frequently, was defeated in his race for re-election as governor of Kansas Tuesday. Complete official returns were not obtainable until today when it developed that Arthur Capper, the Republican candidate for governor, has a plurality of 41,762 over Hodges. J. B. Billard, Independent, and Henry J. Allen, Progressive, are running a close race for third place.

HAVE THIRTY DAYS TO FILE STATEMENTS

Candidates Whether Elected or Defeated Must Show How Much They Spent in Campaign.

SOME COMPLY WITH THE LAW

Candidates on the various tickets at the election just past should not neglect to file their expense statements with the clerk of the circuit court. Several have already done so and the rest have thirty days before they have violated the law. Some of the candidates are of the opinion that the only expense statement required was the one following the nomination but under the law one must be filed after the election giving the amount of money expended and stating whether any promises were made.

Several candidates have already filed their statements. Some did not spend any money while others spent small sums for cards and advertising. Others contributed money to the campaign fund of their party. The candidates are required to file their statements regardless of whether they were elected or defeated.

COURT HOUSE DRUG STORE IS ENTERED

Thieves Steal $43 During Night. Gaining Entrance by Prying Boards From Rear Window.

P. H. McCONNELL HAS NO CLEW

The court house drug store was entered last night and robbed of $43. Entrance was gained by prying the boards from a rear window. So far P. H. McConnell, proprietor, has no clew as to who entered his store. Three dollars was taken from each of the two cash registers and the balance of the $43 was taken from a drawer in his roll top desk. Every drawer in the desk was found open this morning and all but two dollars was taken from the desk.

It is hard to understand how the robbers entered the store without attracting attention as the boards at the window were very heavy and much noise must have resulted when they were taken from the wall. Mr. McConnell believes the work was done by local people and someone that was acquainted with the rear of his store. The desk is located about half way between the front and rear and could be searched without the persons being seen from the sidewalk.

COUNCIL WILL BE REPUBLICAN

Even Though J. E. Caldwell Does Not Get Seat, The County Body Will be Four to Three.

HE AND HAVENS SWITCHED

Opinions Vary Whether Candidate Next Highest in Fourth Should be Given Place.

The first officials elected at the election Tuesday will take their offices November 14. On this date the county council will hold its first meeting and organize. This is the date established under the law, which provides for a meeting the second Saturday after the election.

Interest in the meeting of the county council centers on what disposition will be made of J. E. Caldwell, elected as a Republican from district No. 4. In certifying to the nominations to the clerk of the circuit court a mistake was made in placing the name of Mr. Caldwell in the fourth district when it should have been in the third district. On the official ballot the name of R. P. Havens appeared in the third district instead of Mr. Caldwell.

Mr. Caldwell in the fourth district defeated Frank Megee, Democrat, while in the third district R. P. Havens was defeated by Rolle Zorne, Democrat. The general opinion is that Mr. Caldwell cannot qualify for the place and in this case the question puzzling the officials is who is entitled to the place.

Opinion is about equally divided. At the auditors office the opinion is that when Mr. Caldwell fails to qualify the place will be declared vacant and the county council will then proceed to elect a member. In other places it is declared that the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes would be entitled to the place. In this case it would be Frank Megee as he received the next highest vote and can qualify as he lives in this district.

It makes little difference either way the question is decided as the county council will be Republican. In case Mr. Megee should be given the seat there will be four Republican and 3 Democratic members of the council. The ballots presented a peculiar appearance in regard to the councilman candidates. Only the Democratic candidates were placed in the right districts the Progressives making the same mistake that the Republicans did.

With the district represented by J. E. Caldwell vacant the county council will be composed of the following men: Hiram Heney, John W. Davis, John McKee, Republican councilmen-at-large; Edward Buscher, Democrat from the first district; Charles Davis, Republican, second district; Rolla E. Zorne, Democrat, third district.

Will M. Sparks and Albert Stevens will take the offices of judge and prosecutor the first of next January. The incumbents, John D. Megee and Donald Smith, were appointed by Governor Ralston when the Rush county circuit was created and were to hold office until another election was held.

The county board of commissioners will remain Democratic until January 1, 1916. P. A. Newhouse, elected on the Republican ticket from the middle district, will succeed T. J. Humes January 1, 1915. John Bowles, elected on the Republican ticket from the northern district, will succeed Edson L. Aiken January 1, 1916.

TRADE AT HOME DINNER PLANNED

Retail Merchants Committee Decides to Carry Out Suggestions of Indiana Association.

IF IT GETS PROPER SUPPORT

Committees Are Appointed to Attend to the Details—Banquet of Indiana Products.

The retail merchants committee of the Chamber of Commerce met last night and decided to observe "Trade-at-Home" day in Indiana here Tuesday, November 17, which is in line with the suggestion of the Indiana Retail Merchants association.

The Indiana Retail Merchants association has already aroused considerable interest in the project and has word from thirty-five Indiana towns that the day will be celebrated by holding a "Trade-at-Home" dinner in the evening of the day, as suggested by the organization. A Chamber of Commerce statement concerning the meeting last night says:

A meeting of the retail merchants committee of the Rush County Chamber of Commerce was held last night to arrange to carry out the program of the Indiana Retail Merchants association for the observance of "Trade-at-Home-Day" in Indiana. Committees were appointed and the project will be carried out if it receives the proper support.

This is only the beginning of a "Trade-at-Home" campaign started by the Indiana association. The association sees in it an opportunity to interest everyone not only in his respective community, but in Indiana as a whole as well.

"If YOU buy out of town and WE buy out of town and ALL OUR NEIGHBORS buy out of town, what in the thunder will become of our town."

This was the hypothesis the board of directors of the Indiana association worked on when it met Wednesday, October 14 to launch the "Trade-at-Home campaign."

"Keep American Money at Home" is the keynote of nearly all of the editorial writers, national advertisers, the financial experts, heads of large corporations generally. We might as well apply it to Indiana, thought the organizers of the "Trade-at-Home" campaign and leave it to each community to apply it to their respective places. While all the talk is going on "American goods for Americans," is it not the time for Indiana to help the movement, to help herself by all of her citizens?

It is being pointed out that Indiana stood low in the percentage of population increase during the last decade. This causes the following question to arise: Why is it that the railroad and traction companies closed up their office and took their agents from so many places? Why is it that farm lands in some sections decreased in value? Why is it that fifty-eight counties of the state lost in population during the last census period?

The promoters of the "Trade-at-Home" campaign believes those questions can be answered in one: the people of Indiana have failed to realize that money spent at home increases the value of local property and business advantages; money sent away is so much loss to the state because it never gets a chance to return.

The plan of the Indiana association was for a meeting all over Indiana Thursday night, October 29, at which time arrangements were to be

GETS JUDGEMENT OF $ 700

Mrs. Mary Brown of Manilla Wins Case in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Mary Brown, living near Manilla, was given judgment in the sum of $700 in the Shelby circuit court yesterday against her son, Samuel C. Brown, in settlement of all claims she had against property alleged to have been held by the two in common. Her son is now in an insane asylum in Indianapolis and the judgment was really directed against Lavonia Brown, as guardian of Samuel Brown. She alleged that during the time her son lived with her they agreed that he should hold the property in trust for her and that she put $700 into the property. It was this amount that the court ordered paid to Mrs. Brown.

REPUBLICANS RIDE DONKEY IN PARADE

Noble Township Holds Big Celebration at New Salem Over Election of John O. Williams.

BIGGEST CROWD EVER THERE

The largest crowd ever in New Salem attended the celebration there last night in honor of John O. Williams, who was elected county treasurer, and the township ticket in Noble township. Red fire, fireworks and all the rest that go to make up a celebration of this kind were on the program. Apples and cigars were passed out to the crowd. The town was turned over to "Cain" Williams and the people of that township showed that they were all friends of his as well as neighbors of Mr. Williams. Several Democrats from that section of the county in the celebration and Mr. Williams' opponent, O. J. Cook was among those present.

One of the features was the parade. Mr. Williams and Earnest Tittsworth, the trustee-elect of Noble township rode the Democratic mule in the parade. Several talks were made, the principle one being by Jack Ross of Andersonville.

TIME LIMIT SET FOR CARRANZA

He Must Resign as Provisional President of Mexico by November 10 or Fight

ULTIMATUM OF CONFERENCE

General Villa Reaches Aguas Calientes Today Prepared to Carry Out Demands.

(By United Press.)

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 6.—The Mexican peace conference at Aguas Calientes will give General Carranza four days in which to present his resignation unconditionally and accept General Guiterrez as provisional president of Mexico.

If he does not comply with this demand by November 10 the movement of the entire army of General Villa will be ordered by the convention to remove Carranza from power. Villa has reached the convention city and has taken command of the army.

Excepting a brief dispatch stating that there had been fighting between troops of General Francisco Villa and General Venustiano Carranza south of Aguas Calientes no details of the situation there had been received early today. The Villista troops are those the Constitutionalist chief has been missing about Aguas Calientes ever since the peace convention met there to settle factional differences.

The impression here is that the breach between the Carranza and the Villa-Zapata faction of the Constitutionalist party cannot now be bridged. Carranza has demanded as an essential condition to his own resignation that Villa and General Zapata be retired from military activity. This the convention has not done. Another long period of fighting is now expected.

SHERMAN'S ELECTION SURE

If a Merchant Offers a Cut Price

on any article of merchandise he has to sell. One of two things has happened—He has either lost confidence in his own judgment and is afraid his ware will not sell at the price he placed on it, or he is playing you, Mr. Buyer, for an easy mark and is simply using cut price advertising for bait and if you are a fish and like the bait, he is going to land you. If a merchant puts an honest profit on what he has to sell when he first offers it for sale, it will remove all temptations to cut prices. Wouldn't you rather buy what you need from the man that has one price and especially when that price is lower than the cut prices of his competitors, and you don't have to wait until a sale day to get what you want. If you want to trade where you pay the same price every day in the year and where you don't pay any more any time than the other fellow, we want to sell you your buggies. And as to the styles, we have all the new ones in storm buggies there are on any market, but you know where the styles all originate. Remember, we sold Colonial styles two years ago. We have found better things now. Take a look—then you will know.

The Perfectly Appareled Female Must Have Pockets in Her Skirts

BY MARGARET MASON
(Written for United Press.)

There are pockets galore,
Often two, three or more,
On the new frocks front, back or each side,
They are empty of pelf,
But Milady herself,

May use them to pocket her pride.
New York, Nov. 6.—Have you a little pocket in your skirt? Are there one little, two little, three little pockets peering forth coquettishly from some points of your habiliments? If not you cannot hope to be an edition de luxe of a perfectly appareled female this winter. Not even a pocket edition.

The most of them are all such giddy pockets too, some unflapped to reveal gaily colored linings of plaid figured or Roman striped silk. Slashed across each hip seam and showing their dash of colored lining these pockets serve as a unique trimming of the skirt. More demure ones bound in braid and some with envelope flaps fastening down with a jeweled or gilt button breast the wave of fashionable approval from the breast of a bodice or a short jacket-like basque while others, large and elaborately braided or embroidered brazenly take up their pocket position right in the front of the skirt.

Quite as essential and omnipresent a good point as the pocket is the use of wide bands of fur on all the best winter models. You fare worse the further from fur you go this year. All the more elegant velvet and silk costumes are bounded on the north, east, south and west by broad bands of fur or in other words their flaring skirts are edged with it, their flaring coats finished with it and their necks and wrists encircled with a length of hirsute hide.

With some undiscerning persons fur is fur but with the fashionable elect the selection of the proper and smart fur to combine with certain materials is a vital question. Skunk and fitch make the most popular trimmings, ermine is also a great favorite but is smartest used in its tailless state of unspotted whiteness.

Monkey fur is used as a fringe banding with chic effect and particularly in combination with other fur is it very good. Muffs and neck-pieces of ermine fringed with the monkey fur are stunning and voluminous cape wraps of Persian lamb, seal or the tailless ermine finished with the straggling lengths of the ebony monkey fur are quite the last word in fur fashions. Beaver so long an outcast in the fashionable world as well as astrakhan has been welcomed back with joyous smiles and no longer slinks in furtive oblivion of fashionable ostracism.

It is rather a startling fact that this year the all fur coat which was erstwhile the goal of every woman's desire has dropped back into second place and this winter it is the cape of flaring coat of velvet banded, collared and cuffed in fur which is the idol of the hour. Muffs and boas also have almost become extinct since the high collars of fur preclude the latter and the wide fur cuffs on all wraps make perfectly good imitations of a muff when milady's hands are clasped over her tummy.

To be sure some muffs are shown and the most unique of these is a quiet round muff prettily marked in chinchilla, ermine or beaver. Hard little tight little muff affairs like our grandmothers used to carry are smart in the longer haired furs while most of the big flat pillow muffs and draped ones are developed in velvet that is merely fur trimmed.

As a trimming fur bandings are also used with great effect, outlining the large armholes of the jumper like basques or the large sleeveless armholes on the evening gowns. No fur banding is permissible less than three inches in width and some finishing a flaring skirt, a Russian coat or tunic aspire to the broadness of eight inches.

Many of the Moven Age frocks are flaunting wide loose belts, of fur. As a tummy warmer it certainly puts it all over the bands of flannel worn in the same region by the well regulated infant.

DISEASE FOUND IN MASSACHUSETTS

STATE QUARANTINED.

(By United Press.)

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6.—The entire state of Massachusetts was this afternoon quarantined because of the presence of the foot and mouth disease. The action was taken as a result of the investigation made by the commissioner and his staff.

(By United Press.)

Boston, Nov. 6.—Massachusetts has joined the fast growing list of states in which the dreaded foot and mouth disease has been found. South Attleboro was the first to attract the attention of the authorities and probable cases were brought to light in Amherst and Sunderland.

Four cows found infected in Attleboro were purchased out of a herd of 21 in Brighton a week ago. This was a shipment received at the Brighton stockyards from New York state and the fact that these cattle have been distributed to different localities increases the uneasiness of the state and federal officials who must cope with the situation in Massachusetts.

TO AVOID CATARRH OR BREAK UP A COLD

At the first symptoms of catarrh such as sniffling fits of sneezing, raising of mucus, itching of the nose, or that choked-up feeling, surely use Hyomei. Catarrh is not only distressing, unclean and annoying, but a serious ailment.

Hyomei is one of the easiest and simplest remedies for catarrh or to break up a cold. Just put a few drops of this antiseptic liquid into the small inhaler that comes with every complete outfit, and breathe it. Only a few minutes use of this helpful remedy is needed to open the stuffed air passages and clear the head and throat of the unclean discharges—you breathe freely and immediately feel better.

Hyomei is so certain to relieve and give lasting benefit that F. B. Johnson & Co., sells it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.

HOMICIDE WAVE HITS INDIANA

Criminologists Believe Murderous
Stories of European War May
Because for Much Crime.

13 MURDERS IN TEN DAYS

Macklin Case at South Bend has Attracted Attention—Ivy Reynolds Named in List

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Nov. 6.—Criminologists in Indiana are wondering whether the repetition day after day of murderous stories of the European war in which thousands are killed and wounded is having its effect on the readers of this commonwealth. They ask whether they may attribute Indiana's homicide wave to this or must look elsewhere. Certain it is that a murder epidemic has swept this state. Within the short space of thirty days ten spectacular homicides have come to light, many of them murders. Here is the list:

Oct. 3.—John Barr, 75, confessed that he killed Daniel Lovelace, 55. Lovelace was found with Mrs. Barr in Columbus.

Oct. 7.—Thomas Haurahan, chauffeur, charged with manslaughter following the death of John C. Schmid, run down by auto in Indianapolis.

Oct. 13.—Ivy Reynolds arrested at Connersville for wife murder.

Oct. 17.—Levi Shields found dead along railroad under circumstances causing Marion county coroner to credit homicide theories.

Oct. 19.—J. H. Brown killed Morris Walker when he found Walker with Mrs. Brown in their home in Richmond.

Oct. 25.—Decomposed body of Hazel Macklin, 15, with man's shirt knotted about throat found in vault at South Bend. She was assaulted and murdered August 19.

Oct. 29.—John Kelly, 35, killed Bert Bare, 32, when he found Bare with Mrs. Kelly in their home near Jeffersonville.

Oct. 29.—Ulysses Clark, 45, killed by his brother-in-law James Green, 40, at Richmond. Green was intoxicated and had a married woman with him.

Oct. 30.—W. H. Shakely, Terre Haute glassblower, went violently insane, killing his wife and gouging out her eyes.

Nov. 2.—Webster C. Cassity killed Frank B. Buniller at Indianapolis apparently with provocation. Cassity considered insane.

This list is not complete, for many "killings" have attracted little attention, having lacked the elements of interest found in these.

Of these ten, six are traced directly to lust of sex, and one at least combines intoxication with this lust. Two of the murderers were insane. One case may have been purely an accident. The tenth is still a mystery but the coroner clings to the theory of homicide.

Two of these murderers have been justified by grand juries—J. H. Brown of Richmond and John Barr of Columbus. Each found another man with his wife and killed. In the Macklin case and the Shields case the murderers are not known. Six of the ten players are held on various charges.

Most interest at this time centers in the Macklin case. She was lured to a lonely spot, assaulted and murdered. The mystery of the case has held Indiana spell-bound for two weeks. Even this case promises to be eclipsed later when the Ivy Reynolds case comes to trial. The charge against Reynolds, who is prominent in Connersville, is that he murdered his wife, using poison. The state's theory is understood to be that he murdered her in order to marry another woman. He married ten days after his wife's death. His reason for his second marriage was that his children needed care. He faces the charge of first degree murder.

Thanksgiving Approaches.

As Thanksgiving day approaches, what heart that is not calloused with greed and selfishness does not ache with longing for the old home?

At this mystical season, if at no other, memories of childhood become smiling angels that beckon us back through the years.

Idle sentiment? Not at all!

All over our land Thanksgiving brings back to the old home the children and the children's children, once more to set our lips to the spring of love that is pure and undefiled.

Whether we turn back to it from successes and joys or from failures and sorrows, the old home is ever a sanctuary of virtues and the sweetest earthly interpretation of heaven.

At the old home, the king of finance and the prodigal once more become brothers, and learn that the things which seem so important to us in this world are, after all, but a thin veneer.

Whether we be wise or ignorant, rich or poor, great or little, the old home offers us satisfaction and inspiration to be found nowhere else in the world.

If Thanksgiving had no other meaning than just this—that it turns us back to the old home, that nursery of the infinite hope, and to the lover and dreams and longings and resolves of youth, it would still be one of the happiest and most helpful days in all the year.

FIND LEGISLATURE SHOULD BEAR BLAME

Democrats Downcast When They

Think That Auditor Will be Elected Before Superintendent

TRUSTEES ARE EVEN NOW

The Democratic politicians in the county began figuring on the election of the next county superintendent of the schools before the first returns were in last Tuesday night. When they finally heard that the Democrats and Republicans divided evenly in the contest for trustees throughout the county, they were glad because it is the law that when the trustees are deadlocked in voting for a county superintendent, the county auditor has the deciding vote. The faces of Democrats brightened up when they thought that they had the Democratic auditor in the court house.

"But a new auditor will be elected before the next county superintendent is elected," some one in the crowd remembered.

"That's right," another one replied "it was that Democratic legislature that extended the terms of county superintendents so that we will not get a chance to elect one while we have the county auditor."

Then that Democratic crowd was so downcast. There were scowls a plenty and it was hard to tell what the thoughts of that legislature were just then.

Health--How to Preserve It Disease--How to Prevent It

Prepared for the United Press by Dr. J. N. Hurty
State Health Commissioner

(Dr. Hurty will answer questions on prevention of disease, hygiene and sanitation. Questions requiring a personal answer cannot be considered. To avoid delay, address all questions direct to the UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS, 36½ West Washington St., Indianapolis. Questions may be sent to THE DAILY REPUBLICAN if preferred.)

D. G. Frankfort, writes: "What is the cause of so much trouble with the appendix; how may same be prevented? Also, are apples healthful for persons with kidney or bladder trouble?"

Reply—Gorging and the abuse of eating is a principal cause of diseases of the appendix. Gluttony is a sin and the man who over-eats and who eats rapidly and who has bad teeth is very likely to have appendicitis.

E. S. Muncie, writes—"The nerves in my face hurt terribly since a dentist tore out a nerve from the root of a tooth. Have you ever heard of such a case and should it cause trouble whether the nerve is removed or alive?"

Reply—I advise you to consult a physician in whom you have confidence. It is impossible to tell what is the matter with you and what will benefit you without a careful examination and study.

N. M. writes—"Could you direct a poor girl with consumption what to do? She lives in a basement in a congested district and has no money for treatment or proper food. What is the chance to get into the state asylum? She has no parents or friends and wishes she could go to some country place."

Reply—A poor girl with consumption who lives in a basement in a congested district, cannot possibly get well. The only chance of arrest of disease is for her to secure better environment. If this cannot be done she must die. To secure entrance to the State Hospital for Consumptives, write for information to Dr. W. A. Geckler, Supt. Rockville, Indiana.

Tokio, Nov. 6.—The Admiralty today confirmed the report that a German sailing vessel which was captured while heading toward Honolulu was captured by a Japanese cruiser and, after the crew had been taken off, was sunk.

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

TO BE ABANDONED IN THE NATION

Progressive Party Will Cease to be a National Organization, it is Understood Now.

BECAUSE OF POOR SHOWING

In Many States Moose Fall Below Legal Per Cent and is Not Recognized as a Party.

Washington, November 6.—It is now generally understood here that the Progressive party as a national organization will be abandoned. Whether this will come about through some formal action or declaration on the part of the men who organized the party and led it, or whether it will come as a unanimous consent action is yet to be determined. While the official vote in the various states is not yet at hand and will not be for some days, the returns are sufficient to completely show that the Progressive party has absolutely ceased to be a factor in the political equation.

Even in California the Progressive victory is not complete, because Francis J. Heney, the candidate for the United States senate, ran a bad third, with James D. Phelan, Democrat, leading and Joseph Knowland, Republican, a close second.

In Nevada the two Progressive candidates who were endorsed by the Republicans were defeated. There is now no Progressive party in the state.

In Idaho the Progressive vote was less than one-half of what it was last year. The party seems to be disintegrating.

In Illinois the Progressive party of Roosevelt went out of business Tuesday. The Progressives who gave Roosevelt his big vote in Illinois two years ago have returned almost in a body to the Republican party.

In Wyoming the Progressives who, two years ago, gave Roosevelt 9,232 votes, could muster only 527 votes Tuesday for Blume, their candidate for the congress.

The Progressive state and congressional candidate in Rhode Island failed to poll 2 per cent of the total vote of the state, and therefore, the party has no legal existence. Two years ago the Moose vote was 9,000, this year it was less than 1200.

In Indiana the Progressive machine captured by Albert J. Beveridge, for Governor, polled 166,000 votes. For the senatorship Tuesday he got a little over half that number.

In Oregon, Henley, the Progressive candidate for United States senator, polled 7,000 on Tuesday against 32,000 for Roosevelt two years ago. Not a single Progressive candidate was elected to office in the state.

In Michigan the election of Tuesday, served to emphasize the fact that the Progressive party is no longer a factor in the politics of the state.

In Massachusetts the Progressive vote slumped from 126,102 in 1912 to 32,406 on Tuesday. Most of the Progressives returned to the Republican fold. Not a single candidate of the Moose party was elected.

In the light of the returns from Tuesday's elections the Progressive party drops with the Socialistic and Prohibition parties in Ohio below the legal horizon. It now has no legal standing, as it failed to poll 10 per cent of the total vote.

Contrasted to the 102,766 votes given Roosevelt in Kentucky two years ago, the meager 1,400 polled by Vance, Progressive candidate for the senate long term, on Tuesday.

The Progressive candidate for Governor of Vermont received 5,933 votes on Tuesday, as against Roosevelt's 23,132 in 1912. The party is disorganized and what remains is torn by internal dissensions.

The Lyon Progressive machine in Texas went to pieces in the election on Tuesday. S. E. Etheridge, its candidate for Governor, polled fewer than 6,000 votes in the state as compared to 26,757 for Roosevelt two years ago.

The election in New Hampshire revealed utter collapse of the Progressive following, and it will probably never again figure in politics of the state. The returns from Tuesday's election indicate a loss of four-fifths of the vote of two years ago.

The Progressive vote in Missouri was so light that it practically made no showing. Two years ago it polled 116,200 votes. It is doubtful whether it polled 16,000 on Tuesday.

It is difficult to figure how the Progressive party in Maryland is to continue in existence. In Baltimore, Roosevelt received 33,671 in 1912. This year the leading Progressive candidate there received only 1,805.

In Iowa the Progressive vote experienced a decisive slump on Tuesday. The head of the ticket probably polled 7,000 votes in a total of about 400,000. Two years ago the Progressives polled 71,000.

In Connecticut the Progressive vote slumped off more than 60 per cent. from two years ago.

The one Progressive candidate for the congress in Arkansas was "distanced" by his Republican opponent, who had eight votes to his one. Two years ago the Progressive candidate in the same district got four votes to every one for the Republican.

Although the vote cast for Young, the Progressive candidate for Governor in Arizona, was negligible, it would have elected Cameron, the Republican candidate, who was defeated by Hunt, Democrat.

Oklahoma was the one bright spot in the country for the Progressives outside of California. The Roosevelt party developed surprising strength in Oklahoma and polled the 13,500 votes necessary to keep in on the ticket. None of its candidates was elected, but the leaders are satisfied with having kept it alive, which was their sole purpose.

The Progressive party in North Dakota has wandered close to the grave. The Bull Moose vote was practically a negative quantity this year.

In Minnesota the election developed a peculiar situation. Although Roosevelt carried the state over President Wilson in 1912, the returns Tuesday reveal the fact that the Progressive vote has almost entirely disappeared. In spite of all this the new Tenth district, composing part of Minneapolis, will have a Progressive for its first representative in the congress. He is Thomas D. Schall, of Minneapolis, a blind man whose majority over Lowell E. Jepson (Rep.) and Harry Swenson (Dem.) will be more than 1,200, when all the precincts have been heard from.

Washington, which two years ago gave 15,000 plurality to Roosevelt, elected a Democratic Governor by less than 600 plurality, and elected the balance of the Republican state ticket by handsome pluralities, has gone back into the Republican column.

In Kansas, Henry Allen, Progressive candidate for Governor, polled about seventy-five thousand votes in the general election Tuesday. Victor Murdock, for senator, received about ninety thousand votes. The Progressive vote in Kansas two years ago, east for Roosevelt for President, was 121,000.

CHAPTER XVII.

This Mortal Tide.

She was very certain she would never sleep before her anxiety was assuaged by word of Alan's fate; but she reckoned without her host of trials that had bred in her a fatigue anonymous even to her mental anguish.

For a time after Barcus had left her she lingered upon the sands, in the mouth of the shelter he had selected for her, staring hungrily out on the shimmering sea that, now wholly divested of its shroud, smiled up to the heavens, whose sapphire face it mirrored, as fair and sweet of seeming as though it had never veiled a heartless tragedy.

Slowly it darkened as the sapphire above grew darker, blending insensibly into rare ultramarine with the slow decline of the sun, by whose altitude above the horizon the day had not more than ninety minutes to run.

And she thought drowsily that if that sun sank without her learning that her lover lived, it would not rise again upon a world tenanted by Rose Trine.

It was not true, she told herself, that people never die of broken hearts. She knew that, were he taken from her, she could no longer live.

And sleep overwhelmed her suddenly, like a great, dark cloud. But its dominion over her faculties was not of long duration. Slowly, heavily, mutinously, she was rescued from its nirvana—came to her senses with an effect of one who emerges from some vast place of blackness and terror, to find Barcus kneeling over and gingerly but persistently shaking her by the shoulder.

And then she sat up with a cry of mystified compassion; for in the brief time that he had been absent—it had not been more than an hour—Mr. Barcus had most unquestionably been severely used.

He had acquired a long cut over one eye, but shallow, upon which blood had dried, together with a bruised and swollen cheek that was badly scratched to boot. And what simple articles of clothing remained to him, after his strenuous experiences of the last forty-eight hours, had been reduced to even greater simplicity; his shirt, for example, now lacked a sleeve that had been altogether torn away at the shoulder.

"Not!" he told her, as soon as he saw her wits were awake once more—"don't waste time pitying me. I'm all right—and so is Alan! That's the main thing for you to understand; he's still alive and sound—"

"But where is he? Take me to him!" she demanded, rising with a movement of such grace and vigor that it seemed hard to believe she had ever known an instant's weariness.

"That's the rub," Barcus confessed, squatting on the sands and knocking his hair. "I darsent take you to him. Judith might object. Besides, you can see for yourself it isn't safe to mingle with the inhabitants of this tight little island—and you can't get to where Alan is without mingling considerably. Sit down, and I'll tell you all about it, and we'll try to figure out what's best to be done. Maybe we can manage a rescue under cover of night."

And when the girl had settled herself beside him he launched into a detailed report.

"It's Katama island, all right," he announced, "but a change has come over the place since I visited it some years ago. Then it was a community of simple-hearted villagers and fishermen; now, unless all signs fail, it's a den of smugglers. I noticed a number of Chinese about; and that, taken in connection with the fact that, when I ventured to introduce myself to the village ginmill and ask a few innocent questions, the entire population, to a child, landed on me like a thousand brick—the two circumstances made me think we'd stumbled on a settlement of earnest workers at the gentle art of helping poor Chinamen evade the exclusion laws."

With a wry smile, he pursued: "As for me, I landed out back of the joint, on the nape of my neck, and took the count, surrounded by a lot of unsympathetic boxes and barrels that had seen better days. And when I came to and started to crawl unostentatiously away, I was just in time to witness the landing of your amiable sister, that gang of cutthroats she keeps on the pay roll, and Alan in company with as choice a crew of scoundrels as you'd care to see. I gathered from a few words that leaked out of the back door of the barroom, that it was as I had thought—Judith had stolen a boat from the ship that picked her up, and rammed it on Norton's reef; and after she gathered Alan in the schooner of these smugglers happened along, and she hailed it and struck a bargain with the captain and signed co-partnership articles, or something like that. Anyway, her lot and the islanders were soon as thick as thieves, and tanking up so sociably that I actually got a chance to whisper a word to Alan and tell him you were all right, and that he'd find us both down here on the beach, if luck served him with an escape. That was all I got a chance to say, for Judith marched up just then and yanked him off to his cell. I mean to say, he's locked up now in a little stone hut on the edge of the cliff, with the door guarded and the window overlooking a sheer drop of thirty feet or so to the beach. When I'd seen that much I calculated it was about time for me to get quit of that neighborhood, before Mam'selle Judith nicked me with the evil eye."

"You don't think she saw you?" the girl cried.

"I don't think so," Barcus allowed gravely; and then, lifting his gaze, he added as he rose in a bound: "I just know she did—that's all."

In another instant he was battling night and main with three willing ruffians, who had come suddenly into view round a shoulder of rock; but his efforts were shortlived, foredoomed to failure. He was weakened with suffering and fatigue—and the three were fresh and had the courage at least of their numbers. He was overborne in a twinkling, and had his face ground brutally into the sand while his hands were made fast with stout rope behind his back. And when he rose, it was to find, as he had anticipated, that Rose's resistance had been as futile as his own; she, too, was captive, her hands bound like his, the huge and unclean paw of one of Judith's crew cruelly clamped upon her shoulders.

They were granted time to exchange no more than one despairing glance when a curt laugh fairly chilled the blood in Mr. Barcus, and he swung sharply between his two guards to confront Judith Trine.

The woman he saw at first glance, was in one of her most dangerous moods—if, Barcus mentally qualified, there was a pin to choose between her moods. But now, beyond dispute, she exhibited a countenance new in his experience with her, and one well calculated to appall.

Her face was bloodless, even as her lips were white with the curb she put upon her passion. Her eyes were lurid with the glare of rage approaching mania. Her hands trembled, her lips quivered, all her actions were abrupt with nervousness.

He was by no means poor-spirited, but he shrank openly from the look she gave him, and was relieved when she, with a sneer, passed him by and planted herself squarely before her sister.

"Well?" she demanded brusquely. "How much longer do you think I'm going to tolerate your interference—you poor little fool! How many more lessons will you require before realizing that I mean to have my way, and that you'll cross me only to suffer for it?"

The courage of the other girl won the unstinted admiration of Mr. Barcus. Far from cringing, she seemed to find fresh heart in her sister's challenge. Her head was high, her glance level with illimitable contempt as she replied:

"So you've tried again?" she inquired obliquely, with a tone of pity. "You've offered him your love yet another time, have you?"

"Silence!" Judith cried in fury. "Only to learn once more that he would rather death than you?" Rose persisted, unflinching. "And so you come to take your spite out on me, do you? You pitiful thing! Do you think I mind—knowing as I do now that he could never hold you in anything but compassion and contempt?"

For an instant there was silence; by the scorn of her sister the heat of Judith's fury had been transformed into a cold and malignant rage. She controlled herself and her voice marvelously.

"You will see," she said in even and frigid accents. And the light of her mania leaped and leaped again in her eyes like a living flame. "I have prepared a way to make you understand what opposition to me means."

She waved a hand toward the nearer point of rocks. "Take them along," she commanded.

The understanding between her and her men was apparently complete; for these last, without hesitation or further instructions, marched Rose and Barcus down to the end of the spit and on, into the water.

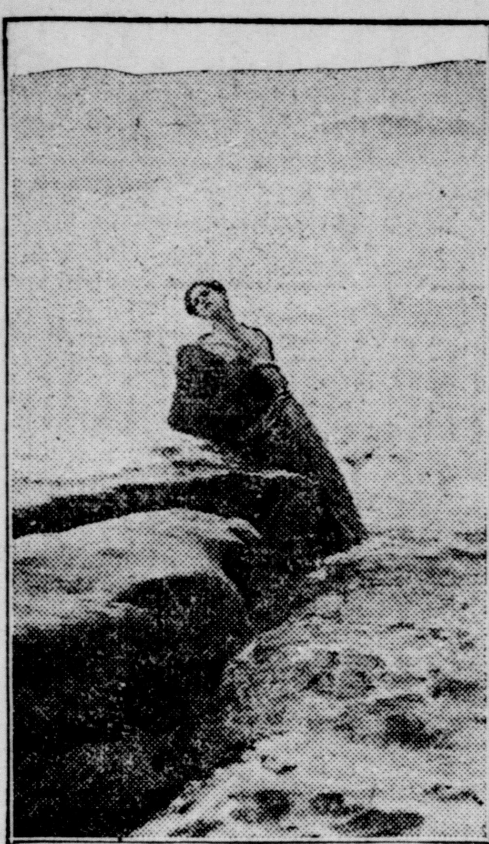

It was nearly knee-deep before Barcus was halted with a savage jerk, backed up to a rock, forced despite his frenzied resistance to sit down in the water, and swiftly, with half a dozen deft hitches of rope and a stanch knot, made fast in that position—submerged to his chest.

This accomplished, the men turned attention to Rose, lashing her in similar wise as Barcus' side.

Standing just above the water-line, with every sign of complete calm and sanity other than that ominous flickering in her eyes, Judith superintended the business till its conclusion, then waved the men away.

Quietly, like well-trained servants, they turned their backs and marched off.

And again, after a brief wait, the woman laughed her short and mirth-

Already the Waters Had Risen Over an Inch.

less laugh. "The tide will be high," she said, "precisely at sunset. You may time your lives by that. When the sun dips into the sea, then will your lives go down with it."

She turned on her heel and strode swiftly away, with not so much as a backward glance, overtook her men, and passed quickly from sight around the farther point of rocks.

For some time Barcus struggled vainly with his bonds. As for Rose, she wasted no strength in struggling—perhaps had none to waste. When he looked her way he saw her exquisite profile unmarred by any line of fear or doubt, sharply relieved against the darkness of the rising flood. Her level gaze without a tremor traversed the shining flood to its far horizon.

He noted that already the waters had risen more than an inch.

Humbled even in his terror by that radiant calm that dwelt upon her, he ventured diffidently: "Rose—Miss Trine—"

She turned her head and found the heart to smile. "Rose," she corrected gently.

"I'm sorry," he said—which was not at all what he had meant to say. "I've done my best. I suppose it's wrong to give up—but they've made it too much for me, this time."

"I know," she said gently.

"You"—he stammered—"you're not afraid?"

"There is nothing to fear," she said, "but death."

"Then," he said more bravely, after a time—the water now was near his chin—"good-by—good luck!"

"Not yet, dear friend," she returned, "not yet."

But the sun was perilously close upon the rim of the world. But a little time, and it would be night.

He closed his eyes to shut out the vision of its slow, implacable descent. The water was now almost level with his lips; it seemed strange that his throat could be so dry, so parched.

He opened his eyes, shuddering. "It's good-by now," he faltered.

"Not yet!" her voice rang beside him, vibrant. "Look—up there—along the cliff!"

He lifted his gaze.

Two men were running along the cliff—and the man in the lead was Alan. But his lead was very scant, and the man who pursued was one of Judith's, and stuck to the trail like a blood-hound fresh from the leash.

And now the water was at his lips; Barcus could no more speak without strangling.

Of a sudden he groaned in his heart; though there was no passable way down the cliff, still the sight of his friend alive and unharmed had brought with it a thrill of hope; now that hope died as he saw Alan stumble and go to his knees.

Before he could rise the other was upon him, with the fury of a wolf seeking the throat of a stag.

For an instant they fought like madmen; then, in a trice, the sky line of the cliff was empty; one or the other had tripped and fallen over the brink, and falling had retained hold of his enemy and carried him down as well.

By no chance, Barcus told himself, could either escape uninjured.

Yet, to his amazement, he saw one man break from the other's embrace and rise. And he who lay still, a crumpled, inhuman heap upon sands, was Judith's man.

With a violent effort Barcus lifted his mouth above water and shrieked: "Alan! Alan! Help! Here—at the end of the point—in the water—help!"

A precious minute was lost before Alan discovered their two heads, so barely above that swiftly rising flood. Then he ran toward them as he had never run before, and as he came whipped out a jack-knife and freed its blade.

Even so—since it was, of course, Rose whom Alan freed the first—Barcus was half-drowned before Alan helped him in turn up to the beach.

And as this happened the last blood-rim of the sun was washed under by the waves.

Two minutes later the lifeboat was afloat, and Mr. Barcus, already recovered, was laboring with the flywheel of the motor, stimulated to supreme exertion by the sight of a party, led by Judith, racing madly down the beach.

But it was not until well out from shore and on the way to the safety promised by the mainland—now readily discernible on the horizon—that any one of them found time for speech.

Then Mr. Barcus straightened up from his assiduous attentions to the motor, and observed:

"You bear a charmed life, my adventurous friend. I want to tell you that when I saw you go over that cliff I made up my mind your usefulness would be at least permanently impaired. As it is, I don't mind telling you that if ever I get out of this affair alive, I'm going to have a try at your life myself, just once, for luck!"

Vapor treatments are best for all inflammation of the air passages. The vapors carry the medication direct to the inflamed surface without disturbing the stomach as do internal medicines. A cheap and very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors of Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol, Camphor, and Pine Tar, that are inhaled with every breath, through the air passages to the lungs. These vapors open the air passages, loosen the phlegm, and heal the raw surfaces. If the cold is in the chest, apply hot wet towels to open the pores. Vick's is then absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness.

A little Vick's applied up the nostrils and over the temples is very beneficial for head colds and catarrh and will relieve most cases of headache and neuralgia. Vick's is also excellent for Asthma, Hay Fever, and Bronchial Troubles. Three sizes, at all dealers—25c, 50c, and $1.00.

ABOUT PUMP REPAIRING

When placing a new leather on a

RED JACKET SO-EASY-TO-FIX

the valves are easily removed through the base of the pump as the illustrations show. The cost is little more than the price of the repair. You can do it. The only tool needed is a monkey wrench.

Compare this with the time, trouble and expense of removing ordinary pumps from the well, to make the same repair. You see it's not the cost of the leather but the cost of putting it on.

This and other economical features of 'So-Easy-To-Fix' pumps will be explained at your request.

American Hospital in Paris is Best Military Hospital in France

BY WILLIAM PHILLIP SIMMS
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Paris, Oct. 19 (By mail to New York)—The American Hospital here where wounded soldiers of all the nationalities are taken care of, is admittedly the best military hospital in France.

Located in Neuilly, just outside the walls of Paris, is one of the prettiest residence districts about the city, this institution, at the head of which is Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, and a group of millionaire Americans taking care of some 400 patients. There are French and English, Germans and Austrians, Algerians, Hindoes and Senegalese, and each patient declares he has drawn the Grand Prize in the lottery of hospitals.

I confess frankly that I visited the hospital expecting to see the fad of a group of rich citizens of the United States residents in Paris. I expected to see a certain amount of good being done, of course, but after the fashion of the dilettants I expected to find a "nice" place run in a "nice" way where "nice" soldiers, more or less wounded, were being treated by "nice" doctors in the nicest way possible. In short I expected to find a plaything of the idle rich—that is the charge most often made against the Americans residing in Paris—a new toy, an amusement of a kind that is different.

What I really found was the unexpected. I was led through one of the most up-to-the-minute hospitals extant, conducted on most modern lines, by the most business-like of men. And the patients are plain soldiers, the unwashed campaigners of all of the armies, officers and men getting precisely the same care.

The American ambulance is the name this annex to the regular American Hospital. It is in a new school building which the government took over at the beginning of the war. The American Colony here asked that it be turned over to them for use of a hospital, all expenses to be paid by Americans; the government acquiesced.

Five weeks ago the building was not quite finished. Brick and mortar and debris were everywhere. The windows had not been put in; disorder reigned. Now the establishment is a model of efficiency and order. In a basement room where no kitchen was supposed ever to be, a model kitchen has been installed, the kitchen stoves and other machinery from the Hotel Carleton here having been transported bodily to the hospital. There is a dining room for convalescents; another for the personal use of the hospital; there were perfectly managed store rooms; a refrigerating plant; another where water is sterilized by ultra-violet rays. American elevators have been built in, one for freight, one for patients; these were completed in five days.

In Neuilly, the patients are admitted to the hospital and given a first examination. Those whose condition permit of it, are given a bath—for most soldiers in the field stand badly in need of water. The badly wounded are washed as well as possible and put to bed for a short rest. Next comes the operation if necessary, then follows the daily care of nurses and physicians.

Lastly the dentist visits the patients. Their teeth are filled or pulled; their gums treated. Some of the soldiers for the first time hear a lecture on the subject of toothbrushes and learn what it is to have a mouth full of clean and well taken-care of teeth. The dentists who perform this free service are among the best known in the world.

When the soldier-patients are able to sit up, during pretty weather they recline in easy chairs upon a flat roof and drink in the sunshine. They admit they are spoiled; petted like children. And among them are Arabs whose only idea of luxury is a bit of canvas stretched under a palm in the edge of the great African Desert.

The Board of Directors of this hospital are American business men whose homes are in Paris. There are five of them and once every five days each director becomes officer of the day when, donning the white suit of an interne, he superintends the work of the entire institution.

The physicians are American and French, whose names are known in two hemispheres.

The nurses are mostly rich American society women and girls, some of whom have won their diplomas. Some of the wealthiest women in Paris, however, are daily serving their apprenticeship as nurses by rolling bandages and doing other humble work.

I went the rounds of the place with a French army surgeon. He entered the building with the air of a man who has nothing to learn. He left it filled with great admiration. As he went away he remarked in a tone which seemed to carry just a trace of resentment:

"It's a shame that here in our own country we must come to you Americans to find out how a military hospital should be conducted!"

GIVE BLOOD TO SAVE SOLDIERS

Magnificent Drove of Horses Used to Produce Anti Tetesetanic Serum For War.

Method of Manufacturing the Serum is Complicated and Takes More Than Nine Months.

(By United Press.)

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6—Quartered on some of the finest pasture land in Michigan, at Rochester, near Detroit, and maintained in a life of luxury and ease a drove of magnificent horses are daily giving their blood to save the lives of soldiers fighting on the battlefields of Europe. These animals have no other purpose in life—they merely give their blood that the soldiers may live.

The horses are the property of Parke, Davis and company, of Detroit, the largest drug manufacturing concern in the world. They are used to produce antitetanic serum, which is administered to prevent and cure the dread disease tetanus. The entire output of the antitetanic serum manufactured by the Parke Davis company from the blood of their horses, is now shipped to Europe for injection into the soldiers suffering or threatened with tetanus.

During the month of October, the Parke Davis company shipped to the battlefields of Europe more than ten times as much of the serum as is normally exported.

The method of manufacturing the serum is complicated and the process taken more than nine months from start to finish. Briefly, the method is this:

Tetanus germs, which are merely vegetable plants, are propagated on a large scale in the Parke Davis laboratories. These germs are then placed in a large receptacle about 40 feet square, which is filled with beef soup, or bouillon manufactured from beef and glucose. This mixture then is covered with sterile oil to prevent air from getting at the germs, and permitted to stand for three weeks, during which period the tetanus germs multiply into the millions. These germs excrete poison.

The next step in the process is the filtration of the mixture through paper and unglazed porcelain. This operation eliminates the germs and leaves a poisonous soup.

This mixture of poisonous soup is then injected into the horses at Rochester. At the same time, antitoxin is injected to neutralize the effects of the poison. These double injections are repeated at periods of about one week, for three months, when the horse is immunized. The bleeding process then begins. Each animal is bled from the jugular vein about once every month, an average of two gallons of blood being taken each time. About 25% of this blood consists of a straw-colored fluid or serum, which is separated from the rest and placed in ice chests, where it must remain for from six to eight months. With the addition of a preservative, and a second filtration through unglazed porcelain the process is complete, and the output is called anti-tetanic serum.

Whenever possible, this serum is injected into each wounded soldier, to eliminate all possibility of lockjaw. Any shortage of serum in the medical departments of the European armies, medical authorities assert, would result in a rapid increase in the death rate and would increase the suffering of the wounded soldiers a hundred fold.

excellent service. The idea of the Central Fuel company in purchasing the machine was to give its consumers as good service as possible this winter.

The Central Fuel company, now has six good wells not in use. They will be held in reserve and will not be attached to the line until the demand is so heavy on account of cold weather that it will be necessary.

The Peoples Natural Gas company blows its wells to free them of water. Officials of this company say they have found this method gives excellent results. They watch their wells all winter and when water begins to accumulate, they blow them immediately. The Peoples company dug three new wells and cleaned five old ones during the summer and fall in preparation for the winter. This company now has several wells in reserve which will not be attached to the mains until it is necessary.

The Rushville Gas company has been active this summer, as well, in preparation for the winter. Three new wells have been dug since last winter and the fourth one was blown this morning. This company has several wells in reserve which have not been attached.

The bailing machine which the Central Fuel company purchased is fitted with a Fuller & Johnson gasoline engine, friction reel, adjustable brake, interchangeable speed, with chain drive, mounted on a four wheel solid wood frame, which gives it a very neat and substantial appearance. The bail, shaped like a well pipe, is fifteen feet long and is extended into the well with a cable. The power of the engine winds the cable on the reel and draws the bail up.

Chester Peck, elected recorder on the Republican ticket, will not take office until a year from next January as Charles Brooks' term does not expire until then.

Henry Schrader, Republican, will become county assessor the first of the year, succeeding John F. Moses, Republican. Adolphus Cameron, surveyor, and Voorhees Cavitt, sheriff, were both re-elected to the same offices. William R. Jinnett was elected representative for two years and will serve in the 1915 session of the Indiana general assembly.

Rushville Has to Bow to the Inevitable--Scores of Citizens Prove.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Rushville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

Harrison Levi, 931 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I had to get up several times at night to pass kidney secretions which were sometimes attended with pain. I had severe backaches too. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store and it did not take them long to make me well. The pains left and the action of my kidneys became regular. I am now free from kidney weakness. I am glad to confirm what I said about Doan's Kidney Pills in my former endorsement."

made for the "Trade-at-Home" dinner November 17. It was decided best not to attempt to hold a preliminary meeting until after the campaign.

At the committee meeting last night committees were appointed as follows: menu, Earl H. Payne, Hugh E. Mauzy and Floyd Hogsett; on place, H. G. Hackman, Fred Osborne and Jess Poe; on sale of tickets, Albert Capp, Sherman Oneal and Walter Hubbard; music, G. C. Wyatt, A. P. Wagoner and Fred Boxley; speakers, W. M. Sparks and A. L. Riggs.

Definite announcements concerning the place, the price per plate, the speakers, the music and other details will be made soon, as the date is only a week from next Tuesday. One of the main suggestions concerning the dinner is that the menu be of Indiana products and that those who attend wear clothing purchased at home wherever possible.

The Heavenly Recruit Holiness association will start a series of revival meetings Sunday, November 10. Everyone is invited. James Adams will lead the singing.
